A CENTURY AFTER BALFOUR: VISION AND REALITY

June 12-14, 2017 | Brandeis University

Foreign Office,

November 2nd, 1917.

Dear Lord Rothschild,

I have much pleasure in conveying to you, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations which has been submitted to, and approved by, the Cabinet

"His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country"

I should be grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation.

WELCOME

I am delighted on behalf of Brandeis University to welcome you to our campus for the 33rd Annual Conference of the Association for Israel Studies.

This is the second time Brandeis has hosted this event. We recognize that AIS is the premiere academic society in the world for the promotion of wide-ranging and multi-disciplinary academic research and exchange of scholarly perspectives on Israel, and your program reflects the rich diversity and intellectual effervescence of the field.

Israel Studies has long occupied a central position at Brandeis and we are very proud of the key role that Brandeis has played in promoting Israel Studies worldwide through our Schusterman Center for Israel Studies. This is largely due to the work of the Founding Director of our Schusterman Center, Ilan Troen. His position as the President of your Association gives us additional reason to celebrate your conference and your being here.

We hope you enjoy the many offerings at this annual meeting and that you are enriched and renewed by your days on our campus with your colleagues. It is a privilege for Brandeis that you are here. Enjoy!

Cordially,

RON LIEBOWITZ
President, Brandeis University

On behalf of the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies at Brandeis University, we are honored to welcome you to the Brandeis campus for the 33rd Annual Conference of the Association for Israel Studies.

We are very pleased that Brandeis has the privilege of hosting this Conference for the second time and are especially delighted that our Founding Director Ilan Troen serves as President of the Association. It has been a pleasure for our Associate Director Rachel Fish and me to work with members of the AIS Program Committee and the Senior Executives of the Association – Moshe Naor and Ilan Ben-Ami – in planning this Conference. The Schusterman Center staff – Rise Singer, Anina Selve, Keren Goodblatt and Abby Huber – have played an integral role in the realization of this conference. Without their hard work, the Conference could not be the success we anticipate it will be. We express our gratitude to all of you for your time and efforts in making it so.

Brandeis has a rich history in Israel Studies. Ben Halpern was certainly a pioneer in the field and Jehuda Reinharz and Ilan Troen have been primary among those who have been responsible for the growth of Israel Studies at Brandeis and throughout the world. Currently, Brandeis offers a wide array of Israel Studies courses to both undergraduate and graduate students. We are very proud of the more than one dozen doctoral students who are now studying or completing their graduate work in the many disciplines that constitute Israel Studies at Brandeis. Our Summer Institute for Israel Studies, which brings university professors from North America and other corners of the world to Brandeis and Israel for intensive learning in Israel Studies, remains a diadem in the crown of our Israel Studies programs, and we derive great satisfaction from the fact that so many alumni of our programs are in attendance at AIS.

As we know, 2017 marks many important moments in the history of Israel – 1897 (first Zionist Congress), 1917 (Balfour Declaration), 1947 (UN General Assembly Partition Resolution), 1967 War, 1977 (Ma'apach-Likud party came to power and Anwar Sadat visits Jerusalem), and 1987 (the First Intifada). Among these significant historical points, we decided to focus the theme of this year's conference, A Century After Balfour: Vision and Reality, on the Balfour Declaration as it allows for a consideration of all the events marked in these other years. This centenary provides a lens for scholars to examine topics such as Israel's attitudes towards imperialism and world powers, Israel in the context of the Middle East at a time when an understanding of nation-states is transforming, relations between Diaspora Jews and the Zionist movement and the State of Israel, the meaning of a Jewish homeland, the imperative to secure the civil and religious rights of minority communities in Israel and Palestine, and the role of international institutions in implementing the Declaration. These and other issues invite research and scholarship that will probe our understanding of the Balfour Declaration's significance in a multi-disciplinary manner.

The field of Israel Studies is burgeoning throughout the world. Participants from every corner of the globe will be in attendance in Waltham, and we are certain that the level of intellectual discourse and stimulation will be high as so many disciplines and perspectives will be on display during our multiple sessions. May we all benefit from the learning and discussions that will take place at the Conference and may you enjoy the wide menu of offerings laid before you in this book.

Cordially,

DAVID ELLENSON, DIRECTOR
RACHEL FISH, ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR
Schusterman Center for Israel Studies,
Brandeis University

Welcome to the 33rd Annual Conference of the Association for Israel Studies.

I have particular pleasure in welcoming you on this occasion. I have been happily involved with the establishment of the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies and still make it my home under the leadership of David Ellenson. Brandeis was the first American university to inaugurate a continuing program in Israel Studies, more than half a century ago, under the legendary Ben Halpern and his successors, especially Jehuda Reinharz.

Holding this second AIS conference at Brandeis enables taking measure of what is rapidly transpiring in the field. Even as Brandeis is a home to extensive Israel Studies programs with participants from Israel, China, Europe and the Americas, so have AIS conferences developed a wide-ranging international reach well beyond the handful of American-based scholars who founded the AIS in the 1980s. This will be evident as the hundreds of participants of different backgrounds, disciplines and interests share their research in a common commitment to free and informed exchange of perspectives.

May you enjoy and benefit from this 33rd annual conference that is but one instrument by which the AIS attempts to serve you as individual scholars and advance the field as a whole.

I offer special thanks to our hosts, in particular, the Program Co-Chair, David Ellenson, and to Rachel Fish, the Associate Director of the Schusterman Center, as well as to a dedicated, efficient and talented staff including Rise Singer, Anina Selve, Keren Goodblatt, and Abby Huber. All have invested their many talents in assuring the success of a conference that will surely be memorable academically and personally.

Announcing a New Series

Perspectives on Israel Studies presents original, groundbreaking scholarship on Israeli history, international relations, politics, society, culture, and more. Extending from the pre-state period through the present, the series gives special attention to individuals, events, and phenomena as they affect the Israeli state and society. Works that deal with Israeli diaspora communities are strongly encouraged. This series builds on the unique publishing partnership between the journal Israel Studies, the Ben-Gurion Research Institute for the Study of Israel and Zionism at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, and the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies at Brandeis University. Manuscripts and proposals should be addressed to: S. Ilan Troen, troen@brandeis.edu or troen@bgu.ac.il or Dee Mortensen, Editorial Director, mortense@indiana.edu

SPECIAL SECTION:
RELIGION AND ETHNICITY

Israel Studies Indiana University Press

Editors: S. Ilan Troen and Natan Aridan

Israel Studies presents multidisciplinary scholarship on Israeli history, politics, society, and culture. Each issue includes essays and reports on matters of broad interest reflecting diverse points of view. Temporal boundaries extend to the pre-state period, although emphasis is on the State of Israel. Due recognition is also given to events and phenomena in diaspora communities as they affect the Israeli state. It is sponsored by the Ben-Gurion Research Institute for the Study of Israel and Zionism at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev and the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies at Brandeis University, in affiliation with the Association for Israel Studies.

ISRAEL STUDIES REVIEW

An Interdisciplinary Journal

Editor: Yoram Peri, Gildenhorn Institute for Israel Studies

Managing Editor: Paul L. Scham

The journal of the Association for Israel Studies

ISR explores modern and contemporary Israel from the perspective of the social sciences, history, the humanities, and cultural studies and welcomes submissions on these subjects. ISR also pays close attention to the relationships of Israel to the Middle East and to the wider world, and encourages scholarly articles with this broader theoretical or comparative approach provided the focus remains on modern Israel.

One of the main tasks of the ISR is to review in a timely manner recent books on Israel-related themes, published in English and Hebrew. Authors and publishers are invited to send us their books for review consideration.

The Israel Studies Review editors fully recognize the passions and controversies present in this field. They are dedicated to the mission of the ISR as a non-partisan journal publishing scholarship of the highest quality, and are proud to contribute to the growth and development of the emergent field of Israel Studies.

Acco Festival

Between Celebration and Confrontation
NAPHTALY SHEM-TOV

Israel: Society, Culture, and History
2016 | 9781618115119 | Cloth | $85.00

This research follows the history of the Acco Festival for Other Israeli Theatre from 1980-2012, chronicling it as a site of celebration as well as confrontation. The festival is presented as a borderland that brings together established mainstream directors and actors, alternative artists from the fringes, and Acco's Jewish and Arab residents. The book explores the festival's artistic direction, repertoire, organization, budget, infrastructure, reception, and the host community.

A Red Rose in the Dark

Self-Constitution through the Poetic Language of Zekka, Amichai, Kosman, and Adaf
DORIT LEMBERGER

Essays: Jewish Philosophy and Kabbalah
2016 | 9781618114938 | Cloth | $120.00

How can we characterize the uniqueness of poetic language? Following Wittgenstein, this book investigates the dialogic, aesthetic and mystical language-games of Zekka, Yehuda Amichai, Adoniel Kosman, and Shimon Adaf based on their family resemblance of intertextuality in their language-games. It resists common social-cultural categorizations while focusing on Wittgenstein's universal concepts.

The Charm of Wise Hesitancy

DAVID C. JACOBSON

Israel: Society, Culture and History
2017 | 9781618115546 | Cloth | $79.00

This volume explores the growing fascination with Talmudic stories among secular and religious Israelis in recent decades, inspired by contemporary Israeli writers who have sought to make readers aware of the special qualities of these well-crafted narratives that portray universal human situations, including marriages, relationships between parents and children, power struggles between people, and the challenge of trying to live a good life.

Prayer After the Death of God

A Phenomenological Study of Hebrew Literature
AVI SAGI

Essays: Jewish Philosophy and Kabbalah
2016 | 9781618115034 | Cloth | $89.00

The widespread view is that prayer is the center of religious existence and that understanding the meaning of prayer requires that we assume God is its sole destination. This book challenges this assumption and, through a phenomenological analysis of the meaning of prayer in modern Hebrew literature, shows that prayer does not depend at all on the addressee. Prayer is, above all, the recognition that we are free to transcend the facts of our life and an expression of the hope that we can override the weight of our past and present circumstances.

Nostalgia for a Foreign Land

Studies in Russian-Language Literature in Israel
ROMAN KATSMAN

Jews of Russia and Eastern Europe and Their Legacy
2016 | 9781618115287 | Cloth | $79.00

This volume focuses on several Russian authors, among many who immigrated to Israel with the "big wave" of the 1990s or later, and whose largest part of their works was written in Israel: Dina Rubina, Nekod Singer, Elizaveta Mikhailichenko and Yury Nesin, and Mikhail Yudson.

Writing Palestine 1933-1950

DOROTHY KAHN BAR-ADON
Edited by Esther Carmel-Hakim & Nancy Rosenfeld
2016 | 9781618114952 | Cloth | $79.00

This is an edited collection of articles by journalist Dorothy Kahn Bar-Adon. Between 1933-1950 Bar-Adon covered life in Jewish towns and kibbutzim, as well as in the Arab communities of Mandatory Palestine. This book offers a vivid view of life in urban and rural areas of pre-State Israel.

Ben-Gurion University of the Negev

The Ben-Gurion Research Institute for the Study of Israel & Zionism

The Ben-Gurion Research Institute (BGRI) for the Study of Israel & Zionism offers two innovative and exciting study and research programs:

The Woodman-Scheller Israel Studies International Program (WSISIP)

offers an MA in Israel Studies that goes beyond the traditional disciplinary contours to explore Israel's history, society, cultures, beliefs, and political structures.

Covering over a century of Zionism, the program integrates historical and contemporary perspectives, and focuses on the emergence of Zionist ideology, the building of the Yishuv, and the State of Israel.

Earning a degree in Israel Studies is of value to candidates who are seeking to enter the public and non-profit sectors in administrative, diplomatic, civil, or teaching positions related to Israel, the Middle East, and the Jewish world.

Life on campus

The Sede Boqer Campus, with its superior research infrastructure, comfortable accommodations, and wonderful location overlooking the spectacular biblical Zin valley, guarantees an extraordinary academic environment and an unparalleled learning experience.

For more information please visit www.bgu.ac.il/bgi

The Center for Israel Studies (CIS)

offers a research environment for BGRI's PhD students, post-doctorate fellows, visiting scholars, and faculty members.

CIS brings together scholars from various disciplines and in different stages of their academic careers, and combines academic research on core Israel Studies themes with an applied science approach-aiming to offer innovative thought and analysis to policy makers in all branches of Israeli government, alongside disseminating and connecting academic knowledge to the general public.

For updates on upcoming projects and applications: www.bgu.ac.il/cis

The Center's programs are made possible thanks to the generous support of The Azrieli Foundation Canada - Israel.

ISRAEL INSTITUTE

The Israel Institute is an independent, nonpartisan organization dedicated to supporting exemplary teaching, research, and scholarship of modern Israel in the humanities and the social and political sciences.

Academic Programs

Our VISITING FACULTY PROGRAMS bring Israeli academics to teach at elite universities in the United States and Europe. These programs give both tenured and tenure-track Israeli professors the opportunity to spend an academic year abroad teaching about modern Israel and expanding their professional circles, while granting students from top universities access to leading Israeli academics. Applications due September 13, 2017

Our TEACHING FELLOW PROGRAM is a multi-year teaching placement for academics, of various ranks and nationalities, with the interest and expertise to teach about modern Israel. This program is designed for Israel experts who are free to be placed by the Israel Institute at colleges and universities in the United States. Applications due September 13, 2017

We offer RESEARCH GRANTS for both post-docs (who received their Ph.D.s within the past three years) and established scholars conducting substantive research on modern Israel. These grants are designed to facilitate the research and writing of books or scholarly articles that make an original contribution to the field of Israel Studies. Applications due April 11, 2018

CIE President

The June 1967 War: How it Changed Jewish, Israeli, and Middle Eastern History

For immediate use in the classroom, The June 1967 War: How it Changed Jewish, Israeli, and Middle Eastern History (100+ pages) is available in both paperback and electronic versions for both the Leader's Guide and Participant's Booklet.

The book, authored by Ken Stein, CIE President, offers an in-depth examination of events leading up to the war, the war itself, and its impact on Israel, the Diaspora, and the Middle East. Additionally, it contains detailed chronologies of May to June 1967, and of Zionism and modern Israel; there are also suggested videos, readings, biographies, and essential maps. CIE products are available at our store: www.israeled.org/products-and-services

"I have just reviewed the book and it is nothing less than a treasure. Please extend my congratulations to those who created it. It is remarkable!"

-Mark Dov Shapiro, Rabbi Emeritus, Sinai Temple, Springfield, MA

The History, Politics, and Diplomacy of the Arab-Israeli Conflict

This book, authored by Ken Stein, is a necessary companion to the history of Israel, the modern Middle East, and the conflict. Available as an eBook or Kindle (on Amazon), it includes 1600+ pages, 500 entries, is fully searchable, and was reissued in its third edition in February 2017.

This is the most extensive collection of accords, agreements, declarations, memoranda of understanding, original archival materials, proposed initiatives and plans, press conferences, political statements, speeches, summit conference protocols, treaties, and UN Resolutions covering the period of 1893 to the present, some appearing in English for the first time.

"The source document reader is an extraordinary achievement, the triumphal culmination of an impressive academic career and effort spanning decades. Professor Kenneth Stein and his team have done a great service to anyone who cares to learn about Israel and the Middle East."

An Open Letter from Gil Troy, Chair, Birthright Israel International Education Committee

I get it. Talking up Taglit-Birthright Israel to Israel Studies academics is like preaching the virtues of Trader Joe's to gourmet chefs. But with Birthright-Israel closing in on that Jewishly symbolic number of 600,000 participants since it began in late 1999, this phenomenon - which might appear frivolous - should be taken seriously.

As this generation's greatest Jewish educational innovation, as perhaps the greatest Israel-oriented intervention since the Ulpan and the Zionist summer camp, Birthright illuminates the history of the American Jewish community, as well as the mindset of the American Jewish student. Moreover, Birthright embraces a model of mutually beneficial Israel-Diaspora relations - rather than have one side feel it's helping the poor, pathetic "other."

Because Birthright is one of the most effective recruiters of students to Israel Studies, it helps to have a sense of what the program entails beyond the so-called "ten-day party in Israel" (which is probably more restrained than a typical campus weekend, because Birthright participants must wake up early - and act responsibly - every morning).

Birthright began as a constructive, Israel-oriented, response to the "continuity" crisis that emerged after the first wave of sophisticated surveys of American Jewry highlighted how common intermarriage was becoming and how difficult it was for non-Orthodox Jews to engage with Judaism, especially during the critical college and post-college years. The Jewish community had built up elaborate structures for pre-college Jewish experiences - and for parents, while often ignoring that 18 to 26 cohort - precisely the age when many were deciding whom to marry and what careers to pursue.

Jewish leaders were realizing that these third and fourth generation millennials were different from their parents and grandparents. Distanced from the immigrant experience, the trauma of Holocaust, the Israeli rollercoaster of 1967, even the thrill of freeing Soviet Jewry, these kids were more Americanized, less rooted. America's extraordinary welcome also made it easy for this generation to be "loved to death," marrying out. But, contrary to all those who dismissed them, they were (and are) still seeking meaning, still open to a good challenge - and happy to discover their roots.

Birthright offered the gift of a free trip to Israel with 39 other Jews and 6 Israeli peer companions, not alone, exposing young Jews to a communal experience in Israel as the ultimate Jewish educational tour, inviting them to navigate their own "Jewish journeys" in an immersive, albeit introductory fashion in Israel. Birthright always emphasized that this gift came with "no strings attached," no institutional, denominational, or ideological commitment expected. The program introduces participants to different ways of "being & doing Jewish," along with Israel's richness and complexity - past, present and future - and without a partisan axe to grind.

Birthright's initial success surprised everyone - and survived the onslaught of terrorism that began less than a year after the program did. Since then, Israel itself has been a more fraught and polarizing subject. Birthright has resisted pressure from those who want it to be a Hasbara training camp or a political program pushing one agenda or another.

- continued from previous page -

Those of us leading Birthright understand the necessary value of it remaining "Israel 101" - a thoughtfully structured introductory experience - not a political program boosting the Left or the Right. Our mission, as articulated by the International VP of Education Dr. Zohar Raviv, is to encourage participants to turn their predetermined exclamation points into question marks, acknowledging complexity, context and nuance, and befriending some unavoidable ambiguity which lies in their wake.

The Birthright poster child, therefore, returns to campus primed to learn. Of course, shifting from a seeing, feeling, tasting, educational touring experience to a more formal classroom can be challenging; too many students arrive with exclamation points reinforced in bold, with markers, rather than softened into question marks. But that's the nature of the informal education business: our job as the educational staff is to maintain the program's integrity and credibility, to make sure the participants get a range of experiences which introduce Jewish history, Jewish tradition, Jewish identity, and Israel, in all their glory and complexity, in ten intensive days.

We conclude by inviting the participants to learn more - and hope that when they come to your classrooms, when they read your books, they approach hungrily but humbly, thirsting to learn while appreciating that Israel Studies can help them interpret their Israel experience through a different, academically rigorous, lens.

We at Birthright are always learning, always adapting, always happy to hear feedback. I have the privilege of chairing the International Education Committee, which we see as Birthright's internal think tank, dedicated to ensuring that we don't become addicted to our own success - or our usual ways of doing things. Most recently, we have reevaluated our world-wide infrastructure of staff training, our geopolitics modules, and our trips to Israeli Arab villages and joint Jewish-Arab initiatives that promote grassroots shared visions and coexistence efforts. I invite you to contact me with thoughts, ideas, innovations, and challenges.
