IAP - UNESCO Special Session on Investigation and Prosecution of Crimes against Media Workers and Freedom of Expression

Kavkasioni Ballroom, Sheraton

Translation into UN languages

Investigation and Prosecution of Crimes against Media Representatives and Freedom of Expression

The active involvement of prosecutors is often the first step in identifying and bringing to justice perpetrators of crimes and attacks against journalists. Over the past decade, a journalist has been killed on average every four days. In addition, close to 9 out of 10 cases of killings of journalists remain judicially unresolved according to UNESCO data. When a journalist is attacked, society as a whole pays the price, as freedom of expression and access to information, which are bedrocks of modern societies, erode away.

In order to foster a free and safe environment for media workers, UNESCO and the IAP have entered into cooperation to strengthen the role of prosecutors to fight against impunity for crimes and attacks against journalists.
